

We are born into a wild and turbulent wilderness, not knowing how we got here or what purpose we serve. We join together and find solace in the company of others and get down to the task of living - but we never stop wondering. Why is it that every known civilisation throughout history has believed in the notion of a greater unseen reality? Are we born with an intuitive understanding that we are a part of something greater? Or is it just wishful thinking? Spirituality is currently undergoing a dramatic change as new thoughts and ideas beat at the door of orthodox thought. Church doors may be closing around the world but the belief in a greater unseen reality refuses to die. We are entering into a golden age of discovery, a special time where receptivity to new ideas are at their highest. Never before have we had so much information at hand and never before has the key to unlocking the code to life been so close at hand. The Universal Mind & I attempts to unlock the answer to this age old mystery. Founded on the principle of opposites (comparable to Yin and Yang theory on a basic level) it describes how our universe is but one half of a totality. It shows why the common belief that we are a temporal being is based on incomplete and erroneous information. It describes an evolutionary journey that transcends this state of existence. And it describes the state of Nirvana that exists at the center point of existence. Most importantly of all, it provides a logical and rational discourse that is so often found lacking in texts relating to spiritual investigation.
